THE MASTER OF THE HOUSE.

He cannot walk, he cannot speak,
Nothing he knows of books or men;
He is the weakest of the weak,
And has not strength to hold a pen.

He has no pocket and no purse,
Nor ever yet has owned a penny;
But has more riches than his nurse,
Because he wants not any.

He rules his parents by a cry,
And holds them captive by a smile
A despot strong through infancy,
A king from lack of guile.

He lies upon his back and crows,
Or looks with grave eyes on his mother;
What can he mean? But I suppose
They understand each other.

Indoors and out, early and late,
There is no limit to his sway;
For, wrapt in baby robes of state,
He governs night and day.

Kisses he takes as rightful due,
And, Turklike, has his slaves to dress him;
His subjects bend before him, too;
I'm one of them, God bless him.
—Washington Star.

HARRY'S BRAVERY.

A Lesson on the Meaning of True Courage.

My father was a physician of good practice in a wealthy quarter of Philadelphia, and we boys, four in number, were encouraged by him to live out of doors as much as possible. We played the national game, rowed, belonged to a well-equipped private gymnasium, and were hale and hearty accordingly; but especially did we prize the spring vacation which was always spent at our grandfather's farm, a beautiful spot in the Juanita valley, shut in by hills, and warmed by the sunshine, which always seemed to us to shine especially bright on our annual visit, as if to make up for the cloudy and stormy weather of March.

At the time of which I speak, the anticipations before starting were especially joyous. Harry, Carl and Francis, aged respectively eleven, fourteen and sixteen, had after earnest efforts in their school work been promoted each to the class above his former rank, and were in consequence proud and happy, though tired. I, Royal by name, a junior in a well-known New England college, working steadily the course, was quite unwilling to spend a week or two in quiet, searching the well-stored library which had the best that three generations of book lovers could buy on its shelves, and before whose cheery open fire we gathered at evening for stories and counsel from older and wiser minds.

We packed our bags, took our rods—for trout fishing was often good, even in early April, in a well-stocked brook that ran along willow-fringed banks in the south pasture—and boarded the train. At the station the hired man met us with a pair of Morgan horses than which I do not remember to have seen better from that day to this, and we were soon at the hall door, shaking hands with grandmother and grandfather, and, to our pleasant surprise, with Aunt Celia, who, unexpectedly to us, was at home. She was a widow, having lost her husband in the Mexican war, and was a teacher of modern languages in a girls' private school in southern New York. She was one of those rare natures that the heart instinctively trusts, and no one of the many grandchildren hesitated about telling Aunt Cecilia his or her troubles, always confident that something would be done toward making the rough place smooth or gaining the object sought.

Carl and Francis were just at the age when feats of daring were a delight to them. Harry was of a naturally timid nature, modest, and lacking sometimes in confidence, and so was often urged on by the other two, when he shrank from attempting anything, by such expressions as "Don't be a coward, Harry!" "A girl could do that!" which, by such a sensitive spirit, were felt more than blows of the lash would be. When I was by, the boys would not indulge in these trials of strength or endurance, but in my absence I knew they hurt his tender feelings by their taunts, though really they did not intend to. A boy looks for what he calls courage in his playmate, and, if he does not see what apparently corresponds to his own, he thinks him a coward, while the braver of the two may really be the more diffident and shrinking one.

It was Saturday afternoon; we were to leave Monday morning, and I had gone to the post office to mail a letter to our father, telling him to expect us Monday noon. Behind the barn was a large oak tree from whose trunk a long branch ran horizontally toward the shed roof, though at a considerable distance above it. The boys had been pitching quoits near the tree, and, having finished the game, looked about for some more exciting sport. Francis thought he saw it, so he climbed the tree, crept out on the limb, hung by the arms a moment and then dropped, with something of a jar, to be sure, but safely, on the roof, where he sat with a satisfied look. He called to Carl to follow him. Carl, though unwilling to try it, was still more unwilling to acknowledge any superiority of his older brother in that line, so he, too climbed up, crept out, and, when he had found what he thought was a good place, and had called out two or three times: "Fran, shall I strike all right?" dropped and was happy. Then they both called to Harry: "Come on, Hal," but he, overcome by the fear he had felt that they would fall while attempting it, refused to make the trial. When they began to speak about what "a girl could do," grandfather came out of the back door, where he had been a silent spectator of the whole affair, patted Harry on the shoulder, assuring him that he'd more sense than Carl and Francis together, and bade the climbers come down at once.

Grandfather was a man of few words, and they obeyed. Nothing more was said. I returned soon after. We had tea as usual and adjourned to the library, where a genial fire of hickory logs warmed and lighted the room. Grandmother and grandfather sat in their armchairs on each side of the broad hearth. I occupied an antique chair I had found in the attic, and which I was to carry home for my own room. Carl and Francis sat on old-fashioned crickets, while Aunt Celia had her low willow rocker in front of the fire, and Harry leaned against her, with her arm around his neck.

We remained silent for some moments, when grandfather quietly said: "Celia, hadn't you better tell the boys the story of the walnut rod?" We looked up in swift surprise. The walnut rod spoken of was one that had rested, ever since we could remember, across a pair of broad antlers over the fireplace, with an old sword and two muskets that had seen service at Bunker Hill and Yorktown. Often had we, in boyish curiosity, asked what it was, and why it was kept there, tied by a piece of faded ribbon to one of the antlers, but had always been put off with "by and by," and "when you are older." Now, when we saw a chance to know about it, we chorused: "Oh! yes, Aunt Celia, do tell, please," and she, quietly saying: "I suppose they can learn its lesson now," began:

"I was, as you know, the only girl of the family, and also the youngest child, your father being two years older. There were few neighbors when we first came here to live; indeed, our nearest was fully a quarter of a mile away, so we saw few besides our own family. Your uncles, John, William and Elijah, were several years older, and so were busy helping father in clearing the land and in its care. Accordingly Henry and I were much together. We studied the same book at our mother's knee, played with the same toys and were together so much that the older boys sometimes called us 'mother's two girls.' But your father, though tender and gentle in appearance, had a brave heart under his little jacket, and I knew better than they that he was no coward. They called him so sometimes, thinking, because he seemed fearful about some things they counted trifles, that he really had no courage. I'm afraid boys have forgotten nowadays that mere daring is no test of true courage." Here, Francis and Carl felt their faces grow hot, but Aunt Celia said no more and went on:

"It was one day in April, very like to-day, that we all went upon the side hill to pick May flowers. Henry was nearly twelve years old, his birthday, as you know, is next month, and I was ten. It had always been a habit, when people went out in the spring for flowers, to cut a stout stick, to be used partly as a walking stick, and partly as a protection against snakes, which were often seen, but which usually escaped before they could be reached. Old people told of rattlesnakes that used to be seen, but they were very scarce, even then, and none of us had ever seen one.

"We all had sticks cut from a bunch of hickory saplings that grew beside the path, and your uncle Elijah said, as we were going along: 'I wonder what Hen would do if he heard a rattlesnake; turn pale and faint away, I guess,' at which the others laughed loudly, but Henry said nothing, though I saw his lips quiver at the taunt.

"We found the flowers, thick and beautiful, just as you have this week. We picked all we wished, ate the lunch which mother had put up for us, and were sitting on a large, flat stone, talking of starting for home. I saw a bit of pretty moss under some twigs at the edge of the stone, and stepped down to get it, when suddenly a peculiar whir-r-r, that we never had heard before, struck our ears. All the boys started up, looking about eagerly. The bushes at my side parted slightly, and the flattened head of a large rattlesnake protruded, and again came that dreadful sound. Then the boys jumped from the rock, each in a different direction, and screamed, rather than cried: 'Jump, Celia, it's a rattlesnake.'

"I could not move. I must have been paralyzed by fear, for, though I was but a child, I could not misunderstand my danger. Of course, what I am telling happened in a few seconds, but I remember hearing the swish that a stick makes when it cuts through the air, and the horrible head, with its forked, vibrating tongue, was severed from the writhing body, and fell at my feet.

"Harry had quietly stepped down by my side, and with his stick, the one you see on the antlers yonder, had saved me from a dreadful death. There he stood, pale and trembling to be sure, but with such a light in his blue eyes, that none of his older brothers dared ever call him coward, or girl, again. We walked quietly home, bringing the body with its horrible horny scales, to show to father and mother. I shall never forget how they clasped us in their arms as they listened to the story, and how I wondered, as a child will, if everybody, when they were grown up, cried when they were very glad.

"Nothing was ever said to the older boys. They had learned what true bravery was, the scorn of self-protection when another needed help, and they have been better for it ever since. Your father has never had the story told to you, thinking that sometime it might also teach you the lesson that true courage from its root word, the Latin cor, and down through the French coeur, is both below and above any outward manifestations, and belongs to the heart.

"The snake must have come out into the sun from his den under the rock, and was not as active as in warmer weather, or the bite would have followed the first alarm. There has never since been seen another in this locality."

We sat in silence for awhile, and then grandfather spoke, laying his hand on Harry's curls: "I seem to see my boy Henry again in his son, Harry. I hope he will grow up into the same brave, though tender, manhood of his father, and remember, boys," he said, turning toward Francis and Carl, "that recklessness and a desire to be thought bold and daring are not an index of true courage and often have no connection with it. If the walnut rod teaches you this lesson, its story will be of great value to you."—R. F. Colwell, in American Agriculturist.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

FIFTY MILLION pins are made every day in London alone.

THE Penobscot log cut this year is 150,000,000 feet. About 110,000,000 feet come down the Kennebec.

IT is computed by well-informed persons that Maine has wood enough to make 28,000,000 tons of pulp, or sixty years' supply for all the pulp mills now running in the country.

WORK has been started on a pulp and paper mill at Winslow, on the Kennebec river, Me., which is to have a capacity larger than that of any other mill in the world. It will turn out 75 to 80 tons of manila paper daily and employ 250 men.

GOLD IN THE STARS.

[A meteorite recently found contained gold in its composition. Several scientific men of considerable note consider this proof positive that there is gold in the stars.]

Ho, poor folks all over the earth!
Have you heard it, the beautiful news,
To relieve you from poverty's dearth,
And to raise you from poverty's thrall?
A meteor fell in the west,
That was stored with auriferous bars,
And scientists therefore have guessed
That there's plenty of gold in the stars.

Then away with all hunger and woe,
And away with all sorrow and want,
Let your spirits exultingly flow
While you join in the glorious chaunt.
Oh, why be with sorrow oppressed?
There is gold in Arcturus and Mars,

Notice to Democrats.

To the Democrats of Cambria county.

Please take notice that those desiring to become candidates for the nominations for the several county offices at our coming June primary election will be required to meet in Ebensburg on Monday, May 23, 1892, for the purpose of arranging for the printing of tickets and defraying the expenses incident to such primary elections. All persons desiring to become candidates as aforesaid are cautioned to be present or to be represented at said meeting; otherwise, under the rules, their names will not be printed upon the tickets.

CHARLES M. SWANK,
Chairman Democratic County Committee.
Johnstown, Pa., April 18, 1892.

THE United States Supreme court has decided that railroads can sell at reduced rates tickets to ten or more persons.

SENATOR JOHN S. BARBOUR, of Virginia, died at his home in Washington on Saturday night after a few hours illness.

BARON FAVA, the Italian minister, called at the state department at Washington on Monday and in the absence of Secretary Blaine had an interview with Assistant Secretary Adee. He informed Mr. Adee of his return to Washington after a prolonged leave of absence and of the resumption of his diplomatic functions as though nothing had occurred to interrupt them. Baron Fava also resumes his place as dean of the diplomatic corps.

THE state treasury this year will pay over for the use of the public schools of the state $5,000,000 in a lump sum. This contribution has raised the question among the school boards whether the state money should be so applied as to lessen the rate of taxation for school purposes or whether it should go into better wages for teachers, longer terms and better schools. The way in which this question shall be decided will have an important bearing upon the future disposition of excessive cash accumulated as a result of state taxation.

THE finding of the coroner's jury in Allegheny county on Saturday, as to the cause of the death of John McClarren, at Dixmont, on Monday of last week, is a highly satisfactory verdict—to the managers of Dixmont hospital and the jail officials of this county.

If, as the jury finds, John McClarren's skull was fractured by Charles Bunton and Joseph Topper while McClarren was committing a murderous assault on them in their home, Bunton and Topper were justified in their resistence and if McClarren's death was the result, they were not to blame.

When the inquest adjourned on Tuesday of last week it looked very much as if there was to be a fight to the finish between the managers of Dixmont hospital and the jail officials of this county, but the fact that McClarren had been punched on the head by Bunton and Topper and was traveling around with a broken skull, among doctors, jailors and hospital attendants for a week without any of them finding it out, lifted the pressure, as the immortal J. N. would say, and stopped hostilities.

The inquest seems to have been attended with very little wrangling when we consider the fact that five prominent attorneys were in attendance, but it may be that none of them were in the employ of Bunton and Topper.

It is gratifying to know that Bunton and Topper will not be prosecuted.

IT was thought, says the Philadelphia Times, that the pinnacle of pension extravagance had been reached when the Billion Dollar Congress at its last session appropriated $135,000,000 for the year which will end June 30, 1892. The Billion Dollar Congress and the public were both mistaken. Oliver Twist like, the pensioners have drawn or will draw the entire $15,000,000 and call for more —$7,674,332 more, to close out the pension demands for the year. In other words, the pension expenditures for the year will be $142,774,332. What the expenditures of the coming year will reach it will be very hard to guess, but if less than $150,000,000 answers the purpose it will be because there isn't that amount in the treasury available for pension purposes. It is understood the existing deficiency of nearly eight millions can be met by authorizing the secretary of the treasury to apply the balance left over from the pension appropriation of 1891, but when this has been expended there will be no unexpended balance to make up the arrears of another year.

In view of the enormous and increasing drain upon the treasury for pension payments, it would be only honest for political conventions in adopting resolutions calling for more pensions to attach a clause recommending increased taxation for their payment. It is evident that a further increase in the pension list cannot well be made without more taxation. It is not good financiering, either public or private to increase expenditures without increasing income, and at the rate the pension agents are getting in their work, increased taxation or repudiation cannot be long deferred.

THE building, by public taxation, of a tin plate "industry" for private profit, says the Harrisburg Patriot, is probably the most shameful scheme of plunder that has ever been practiced upon a too-confiding people. The tin plate mouse that the mountain of high tariff has brought forth is so extremely small that the result of its labors would appear to be ludicrous were it not so monstrous.

What it has cost to consumers so far few of them know and for their edification it is here given. A comparison of the tariff cost of importations and the value of the domestic product for the same period will disclose it. The tin plate people may say that such a comparison will prove nothing because the industry is not yet established, but at the same time it must not be forgotten that the importations for the latter half of 1891, owing to the heavy receipts in anticipation of the tariff, were only one-seventh of the receipts for the whole of the year. In figures, the receipts for the first six months, before the new law went into effect, were 305,269 tons, and for the last six only 52,068 tons. This ought to make such comparison generous to the domestic manufacturers, one of whom said, before the law was passed, that he had four mills that could turn out 4,000 tons a year—which is more than the total output of nineteen firms for the past nine months.

During the nine months ending March 31, 1892, we imported 230,373,360 pounds of tin plate. As a protection to the domestic "industry"—to prevent it being injured by foreign competition—we paid upon every pound of this material a tariff of 2.2 cents, a total of $5,068,213.92. The consumers paid all these millions not for tin plate, but in addition to the cost of the plate. It was paid to "stimulate" the home industry, and give it a permanency in the land and a deathless grasp upon the pocket-books of Americans.

During those nine months American manufacturers turned out—according to their own statements, which were of course not beneath the mark—5,240,830 pounds of tin plate of all descriptions, nearly all of which was made of imported black sheets dipped in so-called mills. In this quantity of plates their are 48,526 boxes of 108 pounds each. During those nine months tin plate sold in the foreign market at not more than $3 a box and the average price was to be much less for all grades. This gives the home product for nine months an actual value of $145,578.

We have in nine months taxed ourselves five millions of dollars for an industry that is worth one hundred and forty-five thousand. Protection worth thirty-five times the thing protected! Could there be anything more brazenly impudent, more shamelessly extortionate?

ABSENTEEISM, says the Philadelphia Herald, has grown to be a grevious nuisance in Congress. And it is more than a nuisance it being a positive injury to public interests. The present session will have been greatly extended beyond the time it should have lasted, by the delay in legislation caused by absenteeism, and measures that should have passed will have failed for the same reason.

One day last week, when important business was before the House, no less than 154 members were absent, and the business was consequently obstructed. Of these absentees seventeen were Pennsylvania members of both parties, nearly two-thirds of the entire delegation. It was on account of such inexcusible remissness on the part of Pennsylvania representatives that so important a measure as the appropriation for the Philadelphia mint failed to pass.

Some of the members including Pennsylvanians we could name, are habitually absent. In most cases they are lawyers having large practices, and instead of being in the House where their official duties require them to be, they may be found at home in court trying cases which they consider of more importance than the representative service they owe their constituents and the government. Men whose private business is of so much account should not intrude themselves into representative positions whose duties they haven't time to attend to. It is an imposition upon their constituencies and an injury to the public service. They are practicing a fraud, bearing honors which they do not worthily sustain, and drawing pay which they have not honestly earned.

The remedy for this evil that is naturedly suggested is the docking of these absentees, but as Congressmen control the question of their own pay, this remedy is not practicable without their consent, which they are not likely to give. It will not be remedied until the the people take it in hand and make permanently absent from the halls of Congress the gentlemen who have won a reputation for absenteeism.

In the statistics of railroad extension gathered by the Railroad Age Pennsylvania heads the list in the number of new lines (53), but the aggregate mileage 1410, is exceeded by Alabama with 2176, Georgia with 1643 and Florida with 1496 miles. A striking feature of this list of railway extensions is the preponderance of the South in new railway building. Fourteen Southern states show a projected mileage of 11,859 miles, or 42 per cent. of the whole. The mileage of the 479 new lines and extensions under way or projected in the country is 28,359 miles, but, as a matter of fact, not over 5000 or 6000 mile are likely to be built this year.

GOVERNOR MCKINNEY, of Virginia, will be obliged to appoint a successor to United States Senator John S. Barbour, who died on Saturday. Judge Mann, of Nottoway, and ex-Governor Fitzhugh Lee are the names most frequently mentioned as the lucky ones. An extra session of the legislature had already been called for in the autumn and this contingency may hasten the meeting of that body.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C. May 14, 1892. Presidential rumors have been flying thick and fast this week. First, it was said that Senator Hill had made up his mind to withdraw in favor of Governor Flower. Next that Mr. Cleveland would soon make public a letter declining to allow his name to be presented to the convention, and advising the party to seek its candidate in the West; and still another that Mr. Cleveland had submitted a proposition to Senator Hill for their joint withdrawal in favor of some New York man to be mutually agreed upon, or in the event of that being rejected, or their inability to agree upon a New Yorker, to withdraw in favor of some western man, with Hill as Vice President. These all belong to the "important if true" class of news, and are only mentioned to show the feverish condition of things political at this time.

The sending of ex-Senator Bruce, the negro who is a citizen of the District of Columbia when a fat local office is to be filled and a citizen of Mississippi when delegates to a Republican national convention are to be elected, upon a southern tour to strengthen the Harrison hold upon the instructed delegates to the Minneapolis convention, is regarded as the most direct acknowledgement of weakness yet made by the Harrison managers; but it is said that something had to be done at once to counteract the work that anti-Harrison agents, plentifully supplied with money, are doing among the negro delegates, or else they would all be opposed to Harrison by the time the convention meets. Whether Bruce will use money or promises to conjure them with is not altogether certain, but from what others have told about other presidential years, it may be assumed that both will be used, the former sparingly, and the latter plentifully.

A strongly backed movement in favor of putting refined sugar on the free list, is making itself felt in Congress. It is claimed, doubtless with truth, that in no other way can the destined sugar trust be so quickly or so surely shorn of its power. Many Republicans privately admit their belief that it would be a good move to put refined sugar on the free list, but their votes would be controled by their party leaders should the Ways and Means committee of the House decide to favorably report such a measure, and not by their private opinions.

Massachusetts manufacturers are urging the House committee on Ways and Means to report a bill placing iron ore on the free list and another making a general reduction in the duties on manufacturers of iron.

Representative Fithian, of Illinois, thinks that while the Republicans are hurrying over the legislation granting the rights and privileges of American registry to the two big ships of the Inman line, is a good time to get this question of free ships before Congress and the country, so he has introduced a resolution asking that June 6, 7 and 8 be declared by the House to a discussion of the bill providing for the free admission to American registry of ships built in foreign countries, the final vote to be taken at 2 o'clock p. m., on the 8th. This is regarded by Democrats generally as a good move, as the bill, if passed by the House and forced to a vote in the Senate, will show that the Republican Senators did not vote to admit the City of New York and the City of Paris to American registry because they favored free ships, but because they wanted the Inman company to get some of the post-office ocean mail subsidy, which they could not receive without having an American register. It is probable that Mr. Fithian's, or a similar resolution, will be adopted by the House.

It is believed that Mr. Blaine is encouraging if he did not actually instigate the opposition to the nomination of T. Jefferson Coolidge as Minister to France, which has made itself apparent in the Senate. The nomination was made by Mr. Harrison in direct opposition to the wishes of Mr. Blaine, who wanted the place given to Representative Hitt, of Illinois. An attempt is being made to get all the silver Senators to vote against the confirmation of Coolidge, because of his extreme single standard financial views, which he has gloried in making public at every opportunity, notably in his speeches before the Pan-American Congress, of which he was a member.

Whether it be true or not I cannot say, but many believe that Mr. Harrison is deliberately holding back the nomination of a successor to the late Justice Bradley, of the United States Supreme court, for no better reason than to control votes of delegates to the Minneapolis convention, by holding out hopes to certain gentlemen who are anxious to name the man for the vacancy.

Mrs. Thomas A. Hendricks, the widow of the man who had the honor of being Vice-President upon the only two Democratic tickets elected since 1856, is in Washington.

Langston, the negro ex-Congressman who had divided with Mahone the control of Virginia's federal patronage, has been notified that his action in opposing instruction for Harrison has shut him out, and that he will get no more favors.

Millions of Hungry.

NEW YORK, May 13.—A letter has been received from W. C. Edgar, one of the commissioners appointed to distribute the cargo of the steamer Missouri, he says:

"I have just returned from a tour in the famine district. All Russians are working manfully and honestly to check the hunger and tide the people over until next harvest, but at least 20,000,000 souls must be helped. While the miller's relief movement is an accomplished fact, and I am personally relieved of my responsibility, I would be less than human if I failed to do or say all I could to stimulate further aid. It will be needed from now until August. I am going to London to see the people who own the steamers which run to the Baltic ports and endeavor to get them to transfer free small contributions for the hungry —lots of one, two, three or five tons. Typhus is raging in Tula; hundreds and thousands down with it, and many dying. What with pestilence and famine both, these people are having a terrible time."

The Capitol Burned.

SANTA FE, N. M., May 13.—At 8 o'clock last evening fire was seen issuing from the attic near the base of the south dome of New Mexico's magnificent capitol building. The water had been shut off from the building and it at once became evident that the building was doomed, citizens stripped the building of furniture, carpets, law library, and every movable article on the two lower floors. The vaults were uninjured. Owing to a quarral in the late legislature and an attempt to cripple the territorial government, no money was appropriated for insurance and the policies were allowed to lapse. The building was valued at $250,000 and is a total loss.

THE forty-second annual session of the state Medical Society began at Harrisburg on Tuesday with nearly 200 delegates present.

A Cold Blooded Crime.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 15.—The murder of Mrs. Charles Hill, of this city by her divorced husband at Clarington, O., yesterday was one of the coldest blooded crimes ever committed in this section of the country. It was diabolically planned and deliberately carried out and as a result Mrs. Hill is now dying and her fiendish husband is in jail at Woodsfield, O. Mrs. Hill resided on Market street in this city and yesterday received a telegram purporting to be signed by her husband's father at Clarington informing her that her 5-year-old child was sick and to come at once to Clarington. It turned out afterward the dispatch was bogus. She took the first boat and landed at the depot on the West Virginia side and took a ferry boat for Clarington. Her divorced husband, Hill, was waiting on the Ohio bank for her and as he stepped from the boat he approached her with a hatchet in his hand. Without a single word of warning he struck her on the head several times, cutting five deep gashes, the full width of the hatchet, one of the cuts exposing the brains. Many people witnessed the fiendish deed. The woman was cared for tenderly, but will certainly die. Hill was at once arrested and today was taken to the Woodsfield jail. There were many threats of lynching last night at Clarington. The prisoner was carefully guarded. The motive for the crime is unknown.

Caught by a Cloudburst.

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—About 5:30 o'clock this afternoon a cloudburst struck this city, causing the death of three men, who, with their companions, were in a sailboat on the Delaware river. The men drowned were Lewis Bueno, 19 years, and George Roalt, 24. Their companions who were rescued, were Joseph Morgan, 17 years, and Lenny Settaro, 17 years.

The party set out early in the afternoon for Gloucester. They went to Greenwich Point and procured a small sail boat to take them across the river. Scarcely a cloud was visibly in the sky. By the time they had reached the channel, without warning the storm came upon them, striking the boat with the sail still set squarely abeam, capsizing it in a second. The men had not even enough time to take hold of the little craft so as to cling to it until help could reach them. Three of the unfortunates left and were swept away. There bodies have not yet been recovered. Morgan managed to struggle to the buoy and grabbed Settaro as he was sinking. The others sunk like lead.

Circus Train Hitched.

ATCHISON, May 17.—The first section of Ringling Bros.' circus train, eastbound on the Central branch railroad, was ditched one mile east of Condoria at at 2:45 o'clock this morning. Four showmen were killed and five badly injured.

The accident occurred while the train was crossing a small culvert. The engine passed over in safety, but the structure gave way with the first car. Several cars were piled up in the stream.

About twenty head of stock were drowned. Two dead bodies have been taken from the wreck.

The recent heavy rains caused the culvert to weaken.

Farm Laborers Scarce.

READING, Pa., May 17.—Farm laborers in this and neighboring counties have never been as source as now and many farmers apprehend the same trouble as last year when some were unable to house their crops when the harvest time arrived because no help was to be had. To overcome this a movement has been started to communicate with the Castle Garden, New York, authorities to send to eastern Pennsylvania several hundred thrifty, industrious emigrants, Germans preferred, who have been used to work on farms, both single men and those who have families to be assured of employment. In this county there have been instances where farmers gave up farming because of their inability to secure farm laborers.

Garza's Men on Trial.

SAN ANTONIA, TEX., May 17.—Two hundred and twelve of Catarino Garza's Mexican revolutionists appeared in the Federal court here yesterday under indictment for the violation of the neutrality laws of the United States. Pueblo Munoc and Sixto Lognero, two of Garza's lieutenants, the latter of whom sustained the loss of an arm in an engagement, were in cyurt.

John G. Bourke and other officers of the Third Cavalry were present to testify in the cases. Two of the prisoners pleaded guilty, but sentence was deferred The sensational feature of the day was the positive announcement by United States District Attorney Cowan to Judge Maxie, that Garza himself would be in custody before the term of court was concluded.

Mad Dog in Church.

NEW YORK, May 15.—While the congregation were listening to the services in the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church this afternoon, a dog, foaming at the mouth, ran into the church from the street and down the main aisle. Immediately there was a panic, and women and children screamed with fright. Adjutant Wray, of the Salvation Army, who was delivering his address, with the help of other male members, succeded in chasing the dog into the street.

The dog was finally captured and despatched with a couple of shots from a revolver.

All on Board Lost.

ST. PETERSBURG, May, 17.—The Caspian sea steamer Alexander Wolcow, which, it was reported from Astrakhan yesterday, had undoubtedly foundered, left a Persian port for Baku toward the end of March. No doubt is now entertained but that she foundered in a hurricane which occurred on the 20th of March. The Wolcow did not carry a single life boat and her two hundred and fifty passaugers are given up as lost. She was hampered with a heavy deck cargo and it is supposed her cargo shifted, causing her to capsize.

NEWS AND OTHER NOTINGS.

—Street laborers in New York must pass a medical examination.

—The first instance that history records of the use of forks was at the table of John the Good, Duke of Burgundy, and he had only two.

—John F. Parker, for murdering City Marshall Musser at Corpus Christi, Tex., has been sentenced to the penitentiary for ninety-nine years.

—While the West is suffering from floods the state of Maine is suffering from drouth. Lake Sebago is eight feet and nine inches below its normal level at this season.

—An Indian, who killed a squaw at Kyquot, B. C., gave the tribe an Indian girl to replace one he had killed, and this has evidently been mutually agreeable.

—Joseph Beard, a rich farmer of Irondale, O., had no faith in banks, and hid $800 in gold in a cave on his place. When he went to look at his pile on Monday it was gone.

—Farmers in Mexico always use oxen of one color in the morning and of another color in the afternoon. They do not know why; but they know that it must be the right thing to do, because their forefathers did it.

—There is a church in the town of Borgen, Norway, that is built entirely of paper. It can seat 1,000 persons in comfort, and has been rendered waterproof by a solution of quicklime, curdled milk and white of eggs.

—Mary Hopkins, who has been unable to speak for four years, had a current of electricity passed through the back of her neck and mouth every day for a month. At the end of that time she greeted her friends with a loud halloo.

—An old cannon ball was thrown with other scrap from into the cupola of a foundry at Binghamton, N. Y., Thursday, for melting. The explosion made a big hole in the roof, and twenty moulders had a narrow escape from death.

—Owen Mulligan, of Clinton county, Ill., who died recently, left a snug little fortune of $100,000. He was a hermit of the first water and neither craved the friendship of man nor the love of woman. He died before he found out what he had been born for.

—An old maids' insurance company has been opened in Denmark. Spinsters can insure themselves by a small sum on reaching the age of 13, and if still unmarried at 40 are entitled to a regular allowance. If they marry, however, they forfeit all claim.

—One of the largest and hardest log jams ever known in the Northwest has been formed in the St. Croix river at Eagle Island. It is over five miles long and the logs are piled up in all shapes, and it contains over 150,000,000 feet. The St. Croix river is threatened to a new channel, and unless checked it will do so and leave the logs on dry land.

—A wealthy farmer named Prevost, living at St. Jean De Chrysosum, Canada, became despondent on Friday and resolved upon committing suicide. He tied himself to a tree by the waist, and one end of a rope to a whiffletree of a team. With the other end he made a noose, which he drew tightly around his neck. Then using the butt of a whip he ent the team fearfully, and they started off at a tremendious pace and tore Prevost's head completely from his body.

—Negotiations have been closed at Chicago for the purchase of vast beds of steel ore in the Hanover Valley of New Mexico, 150 miles from El Paso, Tex. The property includes 31 mining claims at an estimated value of $15,000,000 to $25,000,000. No less than 15,000,000 tons of almost pure iron ore of the Bessemer steel quality is said to be in sight, and work has already been begun on the development of the property, which will include railways and probably smelting works.

—Mayor Emmick, of Toledo, O., has declared himself in favor of Sunday base ball, as he says it would keep men and boys out of saloons. Every preacher in the pulpit has denounced him, and the religious people held a big demonstration. The ball lovers held an indignation meeting on Tuesday night, at which the action of the ministers of the Gospel was condemned, and both sides will attend the Police Commissioner's meeting Wednesday night, when the question will be settled.

—Seventeen miles below Fayettesville, N. C., Albert Gilmore, a notorious outlaw from South Carolina, entered the house of the Rev. William Brunt on Sunday, and, finding no one but Miss Brunt there, forced her to prepare dinner for him at the point of a pistol. After eating heartily, with an oath he leaped out of the window. Miss Brunt grabbed a gun and fired 15 buckshot, striking Gilmore, from which he died in a few minutes. A reward of $300 was out for Gilmore, to which Miss Brunt becomes entitled, and she is the hero of the hour.

—A strange accident befell Charles Gross, which came very near ending his life. He was walking across the Wilmington and Northern railroad bridge at Reading, made a mistep and fell into the river. He disappeared in the water and, failing to come up to the surface, several fishermen near by went to the spot where he sank. They found Gross sticking head downward in the mud at the bottom of the water. With great difficulty he was extricated and brought to shore and finally resuscitated. He was ten minutes under water and the fact that his head was in mud was all that saved his life.

BALTZELLS'

THERE are a remarkable number of new styles in Dress Goods this season, the many in floral patterns showing that Challie effects are the first in popular demand. This is particularly so in French challies, and they are generally followed by other lines. The result is a host of inexpensive yet pretty fabrics resembling wool that can be made into tasteful and becoming toilets in simple or striking effects, according to the taste of the wearer. The wool Crepons are still favorites for street wear, and are remarkable in color effects, sulpher, pale green, reddish tan, blondine, flat and light brown, brown and gray, in stripes, figures and chevrons, reproduced in the Cheviots and Vicuna Cloths. Bedford cords in light tints still hold their first position, flanked by serges, mohairs, and camel's hair mixtures.

Of the large lot of elegant Pattern Dress Goods introduced this Spring we have a few left, handsome in color and design, but somewhat reduced in price to close out.

One pattern Crocodile Cloth, tan	$10 00
One pattern Novelty, blue and steel	10 00
One pattern, tan and stripes, Vigoureux	9 50
One pattern tan and blue Vigoureux, very handsome	13 00
One pattern Diagonal, tan, very stylish	15 00
One pattern Plain Gray, White Bedford Cord border, very elegant	14 00
One pattern Tan Henrietta, Camel's Hair border	11 00
One pattern Medi and Brown Stripes, Camel's Hair tufts	11 00
One pattern Brown and Blue Vigoureux	13 00
One pattern Crocodile, London Smoke	10 00
One pattern Tan Crepe, very stylish	9 25
One pattern Bedford Cord, Chevron Figures and Polka Dots	9 00

—It is said there will be no change of schedule on the Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania railroad this spring. This is probably the first time in the history of the road that this has occurred. The reason given that no changes will be made is that the time of none of the through trains is be altered on any of the roads and the schedule is quite satisfactory as it is.

—Mrs. Frank Shaffer, of Altoona, while walking on Eighth avenue in that city and carrying a nine months old son of Matilda Brown on Wednesday, was struck by an electric car and dragged some distance before the car was stopped. Her left leg was broken in two places, the right leg broken and she received a number of other injuries that may prove fatal. The child was also severely injured.

—On the day of the battle of Gettysburg, in which Co. A, 11th P. R. V. C., from this place participated, Major Burke, when he gave the command to fire, stood on a rock which he readily recognized when he visited the scene of the conflict twenty years after. On his last visit a dogwood sappling had grown up on the edge of the rock, and the Major cut it and converted it into a cane which he carries as a souvenir of the battlefield.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has withdrawn its appeal to the Supreme Court and paid the damages awarded to Dr. Dunwiddie by the Centrecounty court. He is the Phillipsburg physician who got $8,000 for injures received by being thrown from his buggy by a locomotive. According to his bargain, his attorneys, Messrs. Crosby, Hewes & Orvis will get one-third of the amount, as they were not to receive anything had the case been lost.

—On Tuesday morning between 2 and 3 o'clock, four men entered the Baltimore & Ohio railroad ticket office at West Newton, Westmoreland county, and after tying the operator to a chair, blew open the safe, securing therefrom a little over $8, after which they made good their escape without their identity being known. A little messenger boy boy named Keeh, who was in the office with the operator, was left from raising an alarm by threats by the robbers.

—Frank P. McPike, son of H. A. McPike, of Altoona, former proprietor of the FREEMAN, died at the residence of his father in Altoona on Wednesday, May 18, aged 27 years, 4 months and 2 days. The deceased was born in Altoona on the 16 of January 1865. Two years later, his father removed to Ebensburg with his family and established the FREEMAN and the subject of this notice was well known to the people of Ebensburg since his childhood, continuing to reside here with his parents until 1881 when the family removed to Altoona. Frank as a boy and man had many noble qualities and the friends of his childhood and his brethern of the craft, for he was a printer by trade, deeply regret his early demise. The deceased in June 1880 married Mamie Fitzgerald, of Pittsburg, who with a son two years old survive him. His remains will be buried in the Catholic cemetery in this place, to-day (Friday) immediately after the arrival of the 10:10 A. M. train.

—On Tuesday Mrs. Annie, wife of Joseph McMullen, and her sister, Miss Clara Sanker, of Allegheny township, drove up to Ebensburg and spent the day visiting friends. The horse was one they were well acquainted with, belonging to their father, Mr. Anthony Sanker, was quiet, and which they had frequently driven. About five o'clock in the evening they stared home and when opposite the blacksmith shop of Mr. Thomas Evans, the horse, from some unknown cause, became fractious and unmanageable and started to run. Miss Clara, who was driving, tried in vain to stop the frightened animal but her strength was unequal to the task, and the horse continued its mad career down High street to the forks of the road, and thence down the Loretto road. Just after after passing the race at Ludwigs' woolen mill, the ladies were thrown out and severely injured, both being badly cut and scratched about head and face. The horse was caught near the farm of Mr. Elijah Marsh by someone on the road, neither horse nor vehicle being injured. Dr. Jones dressed the wounds of the ladies, one requiring several stitches to close up the cut, but which one we are unable to say. They were taken to their home the same evening and are getting along very well.

Spring Fever.

The gradual opening of the budding trees and the shooting upwards of the blades of grass are signs of the advent of spring. The farmer is already at work stimulating the growth of his crop by fertilizers to insure a rich harvest. Nature needs stimulation and why should not man? The system needs building up after the attacks of grippe and cold, and the only tonic is pure whiskey. Max Klein, of Allegheny, Pa., has the endorsement of eminent physicians, certifying to the purity of his famous Silver Age and Duquesne Rye Whiskies. Sold everywhere at $1.50 and $1.25 per full quart. Six-year-old Penna. Rye Whiskies, absolutely pure, at $1.00 per quart or six quarts for $5.00. Send for catalogue and price list of all kinds of liquors to Max Klein, 82 Federal street, Allegheny, Pa.

Memorial Day.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 4, 1892.

Once more the returning spring with its opening flowers resurrects the memory of our fallen comrades and reminds us of the approach of our sacred "Memorial Day." We see them as they fell when more that a quarter of a century ago the flood-tide of death swept them from our side; we see them scattered along our march of the passing years, some with the dews of death not yet wiped away and the flowers still fresh sprinkled with the tears of loved ones. Those of us that remain are but few in comparison with those who sleep beneath the ground that shall echo with our solemn tread. Soon we must commit this sacred duty to other hands; let us do it faithfully while we can. It is timely and profitable we should once again repair to the graves of our fallen comrades, and let the memory of their heroic deeds baptise us afresh with loyalty to their heroism and devotion to their country.

Need I urge upon you that each step and action on that day be so fraught with regard for the occasion and reverence for the departed comrades, that we shall command the respect and commendation of every citizen throughout the nation.

Let us reverently and tenderly garland with nature's purest and most fragrant gift each mound where sleeps our comrade, and effectually think of the unknown and unmarked graves of our patriot brothers, remembering in this solemn mission we have the sympathy and prayers of the widow and orphan, and the blessing of a grateful republic.

Arrangements will be made by the Posts in this Department for the observance of Memorial Day, Monday, May 30th, 1892. Comrades are enjoined to see that this sacred duty is performed in a solemn and reverent manner.

In localities where there are more than one Post co-operation in the ceremonies should be observed.

Forms for Memorial Day services can be had upon application to these headquarters.

By command of Department Commander, JOHN P. TAYLOR.

SAMUEL P. TOWN,
Assistant Adjutant General.

Headquarters Department of Pennsylvania, Grand Army of the Republic.

The Best in the Country.

Since issuing 12 pages daily, with a most remarkable spread of news, that always leading paper, the Pittsburg Dispatch has stepped to a higher place than ever among the papers of the country.

Its daily issue absolutely is now not excelled in the copiousness or reliability or prompt news service by any paper in the United States. For years past the admission has been freely made in newspaper circles and among the public that the Sunday issue of the Dispatch has not, week in and week out, been equaled. This is high praise for a paper representative of the interests of Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Western Virginia, but it is a plain fact. The Sunday edition is running on to 65,000.

—Thomas Long, of Gallitzin, was probably fatally injured on Saturday. He is a laborer employed by the railroad company and while repairing the track near Gallitzin was knocked down by a train which he did not hear. He was rendered unconscious by the shock and was taken to the Altoona hospital. There an examination was made and it was found that he had sustained a fracture of the skull, and that his head been had been badly cut. He partially regained his senses on Monday afternoon but was not able to give an account of how the accident occurred.

Who Killed McClarren.

Last week we gave the particulars of the death of John McClarren, of Croyle township, this county, in the Dixmont Hospital for the Insane, as partially developed at the coroner's inquest. On Saturday the inquest was concluded, and we gather the following additional particulars, as also the finding of the coroner's inquest, from the Pittsburg Sunday Leader:

In the story of the death of John McClarren, of Summerhill, Cambria county, as revealed by testimony of witnesses at the inquest in the coroner's office of this county yesterday afternoon, there are strange revelations. Strange because rumors that he had been killed by officials of county or state were wholly and entirely dissipated, and because the truth is really more astonishing than were the sensational reports which first gained currency.

Magistrate McKenna acted in Coroner McDowell's stead. Inside the rail of the room were the elder Thomas M. Marshall, William Reardon, Thomas J. Donahoe, Drs. Hutchinson and Graham, of Dixmont, Charles Fagan, James B. Scott, Mayor Rose, of Johnstown, Sheriff Sheriff Shumaker, of Cambria county, and other well-known professional men and numerous witnesses. Outside the rail the lobby was filled with spectators.

As the case progressed the spectators first saw sensational possibilities in connection with deceased's treatment while in custody disapear; but subsequently their morbid sentiment was satisfied as they heard the story of how he went to the place of death and received his mortal wounds by being hammered with such a commonplace and domesticated instrument as a potato-masher. He had demanded a girl at the hands of her kinsmen; threatened death when he was refused, and in self-defense they killed him. But John McClarren, though married, does not go to a dishonored grave; he was mad when he made his demands. The story is best told by the witnesses.

C. R. Gribble, an employe of the Pennsylvania Company, sworn. I never saw deceased until I saw him on a train. Two men were with him. They didn't abuse him from the time they got on the train at Union station until he was taken off at Dixmont.

J. M. Shumaker, Sheriff of Cambria county, testified—I saw John McClarren first Wednesday evening. He was brought to Cambria county jail at Ebensburg on Tuesday night. I was not at Ebensburg when he was brought there. Wednesday night the Warden notified me that the man was there, and I went down, and to his cell. I noticed that his head was tied up, and I asked the Warden why. He replied "He has a hole in his head which he got in a fight down at Summerhill." Next morning McClarren was quite bad, and I took two prisoners, the Warden, a doctor and myself and went to the cell. McClarren was on his hands and knees on the floor pouring water down through cracks between the boards. The Warden opened the cell door, and one of the prisoners, a colored man, rushed in and secured him. Then we put a strait-jacket on him, took him to a wagon, hauled him to the depot and put him in a baggage car on a chair, to which I strapped him, and in this way he went to Cresson, the juction with the main line of the P. R. R. When the train for Pittsburg arrived we took him in the baggage car where he was strapped to a chair as before. He had called frequently for water and was somewhat noisy, but he was not violent. We had him shackled as far as Pittsburg where they were removed when we boarded a Fort Wayne train for Dixmont. Arriving there, no 'bus met us, and we telephoned up for it. McClarren, the Warden and myself started to walk up the road, but had not gone far when the 'bus met us. When the physician at Dixmont took charge of the patient I told him that I had heard at Wilmore that he (McClarren) was choking a man to death, and that it was necessary to club him to get him off. He was not abused while under arrest.

James T. Young, Warden of the Ebensburg jail, described how he was brought to the jail in a wagon; that he appeared rational enough to tell the contents of two pocket-books which were found on him. He was quiet enough until between twelve and one o'clock that night (May 3) when he appeared crazy and we jacketed him. Next morning he was better, but later he had another spell, and another before we took him to Dixmont. Between Pittsburg and Dixmont McClarren told me how long he had been a railroad man and all about himself, but a few minutes before we got there his mind left him, and he imagined he was shooting birds, but he was not violent. He was wounded when he came to jail, and the officers told me he had jumped out of a window and choked a man until rescuers beat him off with a club. He was choking a man named Bunton.

Dr. F. C. Jones affirmed—I saw John McClarren in the Ebensburg jail. I saw that his head was wounded, and when I looked, I saw what I considered a large scalp wound, but it appeared to be healing and I did not make an examination. He told me had been hit with a club.

James D. Snyder affirmed—He is conductor on the Ebensburg branch of the Pennsylvania railroad. The deceased was quiet on the trip from Ebensburg to Cresson, the length of his run.

William Stone, of Greensburg, a baggagemaster on the Pennsylvania railroad, testified that McClarren was brought to Pittsburg in his car May 5th. "I saw a cut on the top of his head an inch and a half or two inches long. It appeared to be a few days old. There was no violence whatever used in the car."

Joseph A. Topper, a miner at Summerhill, affirmed—I knew deceased. He came to my father-in-law's house one Saturday night and got in the house, and said he was going to get his daughter and marry her in five minutes or kill us. He seized a shovel and a potato-masher, and when he made a break for the door to the stairs, I struggled to prevent him from opening the door and he hit me with the masher; again he hit me and again made a dash for the stairs, but I was there with him, and he hit me with the shovel, grappled with me, and got a death grip on my throat. Then Charley Burton, the eighteen-year-old son of my father-in-law, got the potato-masher from McClarren and hit him three times on the head with it. Then he loosed his grasp; he had been stunned. When he left his home, a half mile away, he jumped through a window, knocking out the sash and fell eight feet to the ground.

Thomas Aldens, the next witness, had no important testimony.

Dr. G. G. Graham, Assistant Superintendent of Dixmont Hospital, related the story of the manner of McClarren's arrival at the hospital and graphically and clearly described his examination of the the wounds of the deceased. The wound on the head had not been dressed at any time. The wound was quite large. The man was weak. He was feverish and after he was washed and after an examination he ordered the prisoner to bed, where it was necessary to keep him. There were evidences of congestion of the brain, but it was impossible then to discover evidences of a fracture of the skull, and it was not until he had made a post mortem examination, removed the skull and brain tissue, that the fractures were discovered. Before death there were no indications of a fracture. Two were depressed, one was a linear or fissure fracture. Two of them were without scalp wounds.

Dr. Hutchinson, Superintendent of Dixmont Hospital, saw deceased the morning after he arrived. Dr. Graham had the case in charge, but he examined him and found him very weak.

Supervisor Morrow, Robert McGiffen, nurse, and Robert Leonard, a night watchman at Dixmont, testified substantially the same as Drs. Graham and Hutchinson.

The jury returned a verdict to the effect that John McClarren died at Dixmont Hospital, May 9, from the effects of fracture of the skull, said fracture having been administered by a potato-masher in the hands of Charles Bunton; that Joseph Topper is accessory and that the authorities of Dixmont and Cambria county are exonerated.

The friends of McClarren will not prosecute Bunton or Topper, having expressed themselves clearly to the effect that the killing was in self-defense.

Miscellaneous Notices.

EBENSBURG MARBLE AND GRANITE Works, as sketched by a special reporter of the Johnstown Daily Herald.—Reliable dealers and live people.

"During a recent flying trip to Ebensburg the writer of this article visited the Marble and Granite Works of Jas. Wilkinson & Son, which were founded in 1866. The senior member of this progressive firm has had an experience of thirty-five years, and his son and partner is also a skilled worker. The class of work they produce is of the highest class and style. From four to five hands are employed and the very finest monuments in the county seat are specimens of their skill. Shipments are made through this and to adjoining counties.

"All kinds of cemetery work is executed and a fine line of Iron Railing is handled and sold. The stock of work kept on hand (received by the car-load) is very extensive and many very fine monuments are exhibited, two especially being executed in the rustic style and in imitation of brick work, with a finely executed cross on the top. Among the many fine monuments erected by this firm is an eight ton fifteen-feet-high monument for Sheriff Griffith, monument for Father Christy (sixteen feet high), also monuments for Jacob Kibler and daughter of John Griffith. Both gentlemen give personal attention to business as well as executing the finest work. In all the time they have been in business they have adhered strictly to the maxim all goods just as represented and prices as low as the same class of work can be bought elsewhere. We have no hesitancy in recommending Messrs. Wilkinson & Son to our readers as reliable business men, progressive and trustworthy. Visit their establishment before ordering elsewhere."

TITLED CRIMINALS.

Nobility Arraigned for Offending the Law.

Various Crimes Which Have Been Committed by Members of Blue-Blooded Families—Royalty in Disgrace.

Quite a large number of princes have been figuring of late in the prisoners' dock in the criminal courts of Paris. It was but the other day that I had occasion to record in these columns the trial on the charge of fraud of Prince Benjamin de Rohan, who is well known in this city, says the New York Recorder. Prince Pascal de Bourbon, a scion of the royal house of that name, has been indicted, not once, but thrice, for offenses of a similar character; and now we have Prince Joseph Lubomirski, who formerly led the cotillons of the imperial balls at the Tuileries, accused of the abduction of a beautiful young dressmaker, daughter of a respectable and well-to-do tradesman. The girl, who was employed by one of the most fashionable of ladies' tailors in the Faubourg St. Honore, has disappeared, and the police arrested the prince, who is now out on bail. The father of the girl, being wealthy, refuses to listen to any overtures with regard to a compromise on a financial basis and appears determined to make the prince suffer dearly for the betrayal and abduction of his daughter.

What makes the matter worse is the fact the prince is unable to repair his indiscretion by marrying the young lady, for he is already the husband of an elderly and exceedingly jealous widow, the relict of M. Boyer, the well-known manufacturer of patent medicines. Feeling now secure of her title as a befuddled and bona fide princess, she treats her aristocratic spouse with the utmost severity and economy, restricting him to the allowance of six thousand dollars a year, which, under no circumstances, is ever exceeded. Indeed, she has expressed on frequent occasions her conviction that she had paid far too dearly for the honor of becoming a Princess Lubomirski. Her niggardliness with regard to her present husband was displayed on their wedding day, for the prince was in the act of dressing for the ceremony which was to raise him from dire poverty to comparative affluence when a "huissier," or deputy sheriff, suddenly made his appearance unannounced, and pouncing on the bridegroom's festive garb, which was spread in state on the rickety sofa of the attic, stubbornly refused to give it up until "Monsieur le Prince" had settled a little bill which the stony-hearted official had the impudence to draw from his pocket and to present to his highness. Unfortunately, there was no shot in the locker, and the prince, in great distress, dispatched a messenger post haste to his bride-elect, entreating her to advance him the sum required for the release of his wedding garment from the hands of the deputy sheriff. The widow refused to make any further disbursement on behalf of her fiance, and had it not been for the commiseration which so sad a predicament aroused in the bosom of his concierge, or janitor, Prince Joseph would have been forced to appear at the altar in the ragged and rusty frock coat which had been his faithful and inseparable companion for many a long year. As it was, his misery led into a charming love affair, it is true, but resplendent in all the finery befitting so great a nobleman. Since then the prince has always retained a warm spot in his heart for the concierge, and never loses an opportunity of asserting that the "pipelets," as the janitors are called in France, are a most loyal and mistrusted fraternity.

The comtesse Paris, who has just been appointed minister plenipotentiary for Portugal, where the Argentine embassy is vacant, has obtained his transfer to that post from Paris in consequence of the scandal created there by his son's theft. Young Paris, who was attached to the Portuguese mission at Paris as secretary, was convicted not long ago of stealing a five hundred-franc note from the well-known actress and demimondaine Leonide Leblanc. The latter, whose name has been so long and so prominently connected with that of the duc d'Aumale, had become acquainted and intimate with the young diplomat, almost a century by just autumn, while he was [illegible] which, to her horror, she perceived the redoubtable young man in the act of stealing a banking note from a [illegible] which were lying on her dressing-table. The action seemed to her so utterly contemptible, in view of the fact that the thief had already been financially assisted by her on numerous occasions, that she left the room and caused his arrest as soon as he left the house. The trial, which resulted in the public washing of an immense amount of Franco-Portuguese dirty linen, rendered the continuance of the Paris in a diplomatic position at Paris impossible, and this explains the transfer of the young thief's father to Buenos Ayres.

An American Fable.

An Eagle who had lived to a Ripe old Age, and was so thoroughly Wedded to the Idea of Peace at any price that he had Lost most of his Tail Feathers in his Efforts to carry it out, was Taunted and Bluffed and grievously Insulted by a Chicken hardly yet able to Scratch for himself. To the great Amazement of the Chicken and all the other Fowls looking on, the Eagle suddenly picked up his Insulter and Shook off most of his Feathers and Demanded a string of Apologies as long as from the smokehouse door to the corn crib. Knocked out by the Unexpected turn of Affairs, the Apologies were Forthcoming, and while the Eagle settled down to smooth his Plumage and the Chicken went for the Bushes, the Turkey elevated his eyebrows and Remarked to the Crowd:

"Well, by gosh! but who'd a-thought it!"

POSTSCRIPT.

And that's what all the rest of us are saying.—M. Quad, in N. Y. World.

Not Sick But Lazy.

A north end man, who had been ailing slightly for some months and had come to think he was quite under the weather and was running down altogether, happened to be standing by a scale the other day where another person was being weighed. The sick man's usual weight was about one hundred and sixty-five, and it occurred to him that he would find out how much he really had fallen away during the few months of his decline. With just the slightest feeling of dread to learn the truth, he mounted the scale. Up it went—up—up—one hundred and eighty-five! A curious look passed over the invalid's face as he remarked: "I vum! I guess I'm getting lazy instead of sick!" He has taken to walking.—Hartford Courant.

Watches Growing Smaller.

Watches were appreciably reduced in size after the invention of the fusee to obviate the inconvenience of variations of power of the mainspring. The watches made early in the sixteenth century generally strongly contrasted in size and portability with those worn in fobs by men in the eighteenth century, and which were thick, round and heavy.

66 Cuthbert Pl., Brooklyn, N. Y., June 19, '90.

For over twelve years my son has been afflicted with spasms; he would have one every two weeks until about six months ago, then even two a week. We took him to a number of first-class physicians and we tried everything and any number of remedies without deriving any encouragement in his case, and had commenced to despair of ever being able to cure him at all when we heard of Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic and concluded to give it a trial. The result has been almost astonishing. It is more than three months since he commenced to take this Nerve Tonic and he has never been sick since. Please send us one more chance thanks, for we feel that you have not only cured him of a great affliction but have saved his life as well, as we do not think he could have lived long in the condition he was in before he commenced taking your valuable remedy.

FAG ENDS OF THOUGHT.

IF a mule were to have frost-bitten ears it would be a great sufferer.—Boston Journal.

WHEN you need a friend don't pick out the man whose dog never wants to follow him.—Ram's Horn.

PERVERSE WOMAN.—The girl who wouldn't marry the best on earth generally marries one of the worst.—Brooklyn Eagle.

PHILOSOPHY is a great help to a man in time of trouble, but it is an asset that his creditors don't value, no matter how much they need some of it.—Somerville Journal.

ONE thing is to be said in the loafer's favor. Time does not run away from him as it does from the busy man. Days do not flip out from under his finger faster than he can count them.—Bradford Era.

A WOMAN has patented a collar button. If it is one that strikes an alarm when it is lost, and keeps on ringing till it is found, it will make her fortune and improve the morals of the country.—Philadelphia Ledger.

EXPOSITION NOTES.

MICHIGAN will expend $12,000 to $15,000 on its forestry exhibit, and $4,000 to $5,000 on its display of fruits.

THE board of trade of Columbia, S. C., has undertaken to see that an exhibit worthy of that state is made at the exposition.

THE preparation of the educational exhibits from South Dakota and New Mexico has been intrusted to the women members of the respective state boards.

THE Manufacturers' club, of Philadelphia, desires to erect a building in the exposition grounds, constructed entirely of material made by members of the club, with intent that it be headquarters for manufacturers, not only of Philadelphia but of the entire country.

IN the Electricity building there will be 40,000 panes of glass or more than in any other exposition structure. This building will be especially conspicuous at night as, owing to its extensive glass surface, the brilliancy of its electrical exhibit will be strikingly visible from the outside.

WOMEN AND THEIR WORK.

MRS. MARY BROWN RUSSELL DAY has just been chosen state librarian of Kentucky by the legislature of that state. Her principal opponent was also a woman.

MRS. CAROLYN P. CHASE was lately elected a member of the school board of Cambridge, Mass., having received two hundred more votes than the most popular alderman in the ward.

THE Ladies' Health Protective association of New York is working vigorously in the three lines which it has laid out for its first efforts, that is: The abolition of tenement house factories, the cremation of the unknown dead and the destruction of garbage by fire.

MRS. FRANCES WOOD has been studying some figures, with the result of finding that nine-tenths of the children of college-bred women survive infancy—a record never before equaled in any age, class or country. Mrs. Wood is herself a Vassar girl and a trustee of Barnard, and the wife of a well-known physician.

THE FLOWERY KINGDOM.

OPIUM smoking is prohibited in Japan.

JAPAN'S population of 41,000,000 souls lives on 18,000,000 acres.

DR. BEDLOE says seventy per cent. of the commerce of Japan comes to the United States.

A JAPANESE gentleman named Gompeit has patented a little instrument which enables the possessor to send "a cloud of blinding dust" into the eye of a foe at a distance of twelve feet. It is said that the poor "foe" is thereby absolutely deprived of sight, and is, therefore, of course, at the mercy of his assailant.

THE Japanese cite 269 color varieties of the chrysanthemum, of which 63 are yellow, 87 white, 32 purple, 30 red, 31 pale pink, 12 russet and 14 of mixed colors. A fancy prevails in the country that in this flower the same tint is never exactly reproduced, and that in this it resembles the endless variety of the human countenance.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

MASCAGNI'S "L'Amico Fritz" has failed to please either at Turin or Budapesth.

MASSENET has great confidence in his new opera, "Wertler," composed in 1886. He is writing another opera in five acts, called "Thelis."

PADEREWSKI eats but little besides eggs, and his favorite beverages are tea and lemonade. One might judge from his wonderful blonde hair that his chief article of diet was peroxide of hydrogen.

THE Seidl society of Brooklyn was founded three years ago by a few women having the desire for fine orchestral music, and its first concert was given at Brighton Beach under the leadership of Anton Seidl. Since then it has given a number of concerts, and to-day the society has the fine ambition to raise the standard of musical culture in their city of eight hundred thousand people.

Not Up on Society.

There are all kinds of people to be found in Washington and most of them want to see all the sights. One day recently two or three, very evidently from Wayback, attended the usual afternoon reception at the postmaster general's. They never thought of stopping to speak to Mrs. Wanamaker or the ladies receiving with her, but dashed right in and finding a young lady, who seemed to be at home, they tackled her at once. "You've got a picter gallery here, ain't you?" inquired the spokesman. The young lady said the pictures were in the next room. "Got any catalogues to show what's what?" was the next inquiry. The young lady said there wasn't any, but that she would be glad to tell them all they cared to know about the pictures. Her services were gladly accepted and after half an hour spent in the gallery the visitors thanked her and started away. She watched them as they went out and in the hall they stopped and held a consultation. Then one of the party returned and offered the young lady a quarter, with apologies for not doing it sooner. She declined, but is sorry now she did not take it as a souvenir.—Detroit Free Press.

How to Be a Nice Fellow.

Always try and adapt yourself to circumstances. When you go to a clambake, do as the clambakers do—eat, drink and be merry. A solemn man has no place at a clambake. When you go to a funeral, do as the mourners do; be quiet and unobtrusive; a jester has no place at a funeral. So in everything study the character of the company, and then accept their sentiments as your own. This is what makes a man "a nice fellow to have around."—Philadelphia North American.

One Way of Telling.

Wife—I know that Mrs. Bronstone was thinking all sorts of horrid things of me while she was talking to me.

Husband—Why, my dear, I don't understand why you should say that. She certainly was very pleasant.

Wife—Oh, yes, of course, but she kept looking at my dress all the time she was talking.—Detroit Free Press.

A WORD ABOUT CATARRH.

It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established it eats into the vitals and renders a life a long drawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, trammeling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it assaults the membranous linings and and envelopes the bones, eating the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviatives are simply procrastinated sufferings, leading to a fatal termination. Even when the disease has made frightful inroads on delicate constitutions, hearing, smell and taste have been recovered and the disease thoroughly driven out.

CHRONIC DISEASES.

The doctors treat no acute diseases but make an entire specialty of chronic and long standing diseases. Cases given up by other doctors and pronounced incurable, their most desire to see. The doctors have treated over over 15,000 cases in Ohio in the last twelve years, many of which had been given up as incurable; some to be blind, others to be deaf, and a large number to be invalids for life. But behold! now they see and hear, and many are started on the right road to health and recovery every day.

The doctors are surrounded with the largest collection of fine instruments ever imported to this country for examining and treating all chronic diseases of the Head, Face, Eye, Ear, Throat, Heart, Lungs, Stomach, Liver Kidney, Bladder, Skin, Brain, and Nervous System. Cancers, Tumors, Piles, Swellings, Old Sores, Fits, Paralysis, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Dropsy, Gout, Sick Headache, Debility, Depression of Spirits, Diseases of Children, Hereditary Diseases, etc., etc., and in fact all long standing and Chronic Diseases.

RECTAL DISEASES.

They also make a specialty of all form of Rectal Diseases, Piles—Internal and external, Itching and bleeding rectal ulcers, fissures, fistula—which are often taken for Cancerous and Lung Diseases, all cured if taken in time. Remember we cure all forms of Piles without pain, detention from business, and without the use of a knife, caustic, ligature or injection. Come and be convinced. Dr. McClellan made these diseases a specialty for ten years in a large city.

Diseases of women, such as have baffled the skill of all physicians and remedies, quickly cured. Cancers, tumors, fibroid and polypoid growths cured without the use of the knife or caustics. No cutting, no pain, no danger.

HE Missed his Opportunity! DON'T Miss Yours, Reader. The majority neglect their opportunities, and from that reason live poorly and die in obscurity! Harrowing despair is the lot of many, as they look back on lost, forever lost, opportunity. Life is passing! Reach out, up and on. The golden opportunity, and secure prosperity, prominence, peace. It was said by a philosopher, that "the tide of fortune is taken at the golden opportunity to each person at some period of life; embrace the chance, and all is prosperity; fail to do so and she departs, never to return." How shall you find the golden opportunity? Investigate every one that appears worthy, and of fair promise, that is what all successful men do. Many are the openings, such as is not often within the reach of laboring people. Improved, it will give, at least, a good start in life. The outlay is exceedingly small, many is here. Money to be made rapidly and honorably by any industrious person of either sex. All ages. You can do the work and live at home, wherever you are. Even beginners are easily earning from $5 to $10 per day. You can do as well if you will work, not too hard, but industriously; and you can increase your income as you go on. You can give your spare time only, or all your time. Easy to learn. Capital not required. We start you. All is comparatively new and entirely wonderful. A grand chance. Write and show you how, free. Failure unknown among our workers. No room to explain here. Write and learn all, free, by return mail. Unwise to delay. Address at once, H. Hallett & Co., Box 880, Portland, Maine.

AN AGE OF PROGRESSION.

UNDERCLOTHING of wood fiber is coming into use.

THE street cars in Leavenworth, Kan., are to be run by compressed air. The citizens have raised the money to raise the wind.

A SEWING machine has been invented which stitches easily and rapidly through layers of leather five-eighths of an inch in thickness.

A GERMAN inventor is reported to have devised an ingenious camera taking photographs of the internal organs of human beings and beasts.

AN engineer on the Missouri Pacific has invented a coat of mail so contrived that when a man is held up by robbers he can discharge a revolver while both hands are confined above his head.

THE latest architectural novelty in Chicago is a book-shaped block, twelve stories high, to be known as the Mercantile Register. This book will have steel bindings with terra cotta trimmings.

A FRENCH scientist has invented a practical machine for adding columns of figures. It is expected to be a great boon to bookkeepers, for, according to all accounts, it is simply constructed and can be easily used.

PURELY PERSONAL.

ZEBULON SYPHER, a pork raiser at Norwood, Ill., is said to closely resemble pictures of Shakespeare.

A SON of Charles Matthews, born in New York, is now, at the age of forty-two, becoming conspicuous at the British bar.

SQUIRE JOHNSON, a justice of the peace at Grayson, Ky., has enrolled himself as a scholar in a country school near his home. He is forty years old.

THE six Shields brothers, of Collin county, Texs., have an average height of six feet eight inches, and Col. Henry Thurston, of Titus county, Tex., towers up to the height of eight feet five inches.

MRS. JESSE RUSSELL, of Bay Ridge, L. I., is 105 years old and has never had any severe sickness. She waits upon herself and is a daily reader of the newspapers. Five generations of the family are now living.

DR. LEWIS REITER, a physician of once lucrative practice and now a ruin of wealth, has been discovered living in squalid apartments at Williamsburg, N. J., and with all the surroundings of a miser. His wife, who left him some years ago, is a niece of Gen. Franz Sigel.

LITERARY GLEANINGS.

LORD TENNYSON is not very strong in his spelling.

THERE are over 6,000 known languages and dialects.

THE total number of newspapers published in the world at present is said to be in excess of 37,000.

ANDREW CARNEGIE has donated for libraries and museums in the state of Pennsylvania $2,440,000 in all, beside over £100,000 for libraries in his native country, Scotland.

A NEWSPAPER printed in the Sioux language, to be called the Lina Sappa Woeckiye Taeyaupaha, and edited by Father Jerome, the Indian missionary of Fort Tottan, is to be published at Devil's Lake, N. D.

THE woman's literary club of Baltimore has begun collecting a library of all works written by men and women of their state, and southern papers are urging the formation of clubs for a similar work in all their states.

ON MANY SUBJECTS.

THERE is a spider named after Anthony J. Drexel, of Philadelphia.

A LARGE bed of scallops has been discovered near Bastine, Me. Large, undeveloped deposits are also in the lower St. Croix river.

IT is said that if the "voice" of an elephant were as loud in proportion as that of a nightingale, his trumpeting could be heard around the world.

WITH a jackknife James Ingram, of East Bradford, Mo., has carved on a dogwood cane a fox hunt, with a dozen hounds and a mounted hunter or two in the chase.

A CAMEL of the largest size has been known to drink from thirty to fifty gallons and then travel without water for twenty days. The water remains pure, and numerous instances are on record in which human life has been saved in the desert by killing a camel and using the water from its stomach.

SCIENCE WITH A RELISH.

THE ant is said to have the biggest brain, according to its size, of any creature.

THE normal temperature of man is 98½ degress Fahrenheit; that of fish 77 degrees.

A POLISH chemist has discovered that liquid oxygen is not colorless. In a layer of it thirty millimeters thick he finds that it has a bright sky-blue color.

BROWN eyes, according to De Candolle, the famous scientist, are much more common among women than among men. The same gentleman declares that in respect to health persons of the brown type are probably superior to those of the blonde type.

THE sun gives 600,000 times as much light as the moon; 7,000,000,000 as much as the brightest star, and 26,000,000 times as much as all the stars combined. In size the sun equals 1,300,000 earths, but owing to its smaller density its weight equals only 300,000 earths.

MIGHTY ENGINES OF WAR.

THE German navy is being strengthened. Twenty thousand seamen are being added to the regular navy, and seven hundred and fifty men to the torpedo fleet.

A VELOCITY as high as 2,887 feet per second has been attained by a projectile from a rapid-fire gun. This is at the rate of 1,968 miles an hour. It is the highest velocity yet recorded.

THE electric search lights of the United States double-turreted monitor Miantonomoh are of 24,000 candle-power. The New York Sun describes them as "boring holes into the night."

RUSSIA has the largest armored war ship afloat. The vessel is the Rurie (the name of the hero of the "Gunmaker of Moscow"), and is of 11,000 tonnage. England is building two war vessels of 9,000 tons. Spain has ordered three armored cruisers of 9,200 tons displacement.

Alice and Phebe Cary.

The common people of America loved these poet-sisters. It was a rekindling of that devotion which nations once had for their chosen bards. I can see the peaceful village at the gloaming of a Sunday. The country stretch off into the shadows. The groves give off a cool perfume. I can behold the gathering of the folk in the front room, with the sorrow that the sun has set, and the wish that rest might be longer, though it could not be sweeter. I can feel again the heavy burden of life as it casts its Monday's shadows before. I can hear the soft tones of the melodion herald of the organ and piano. And then the household flings off the clay of this earth, and for the hour is contented as the flocks and the herds at the edges of the hamlet. "One sweetly solemn thought comes to me o'er and o'er; I'm nearer home to-day than I've ever been before." It is the poem of Alice Carey, and it has brought comfort in thousands of homes. There have been few such unions as that of Alice and Phebe. For half a century they were together.
